Medical Experience

Dr. Nadine Aleywan joined the Obstetrics and Gynecology (Obs & Gyn) department at the Clemenceau Medical Center in 2008 where she is currently a full time attending physician. In addition to general Obs & Gyn, she is trained in urinary incontinence diagnosis and management.

Prior to joining CMC, Dr. Aleywan was an attending physician at the Rafic Hariri University Hospital (RHUH) for four years. In addition to her practice, she held teaching responsibilities training resident doctors from the American University of Beirut and from the Lebanese University. Dr. Aleywan held also the position of Out Patient Department coordinator at RHUH.

Following her graduation in 2002, she started her own private practice and joined the Najjar Hospital and the Mother & Child Welfare hospital as a part-time physician.

In 2001 and 2002, Dr. Aleywan trained in urogynecology with Dr. Richard Villey in Paris in the Diaconesses hospital, a pioneering center for TVT operations, and participated in pan-European monthly workshops for TVT and laparoscopic surgeries.

Dr. Aleywan has gained expertise in multiple schools for managing patients and in multiple languages having been trained in the USA, Sweden, France and Lebanon.

Throughout her education and career, Dr. Aleywan worked diligently on advancing women's health in the Middle East region through joining several outreach programs. She strongly believes in preventive healthcare management.

Being herself a mother, Dr. Aleywan is passionate about making women's maternity experience both a healthy and fulfilling one.
